

Used in series within a gas line, the fine adjustment valves are designed to allow the isolation and flow control of gas travelling through a hose.

